Conclusion of Mrs. Hardinges Narrative. My memoirs were written, and a portion of them already in the hands of the publishers, when the startling news came which has thrilled all Europe and filled her inhabitants with horror--the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States. It was always the boast of Americans, were they Northern or Southern in their sentiments, that theirs was the only history that could show to the world a clear untarnished record of successful Republican rule. But their annals can be no longer so regarded; for, in the sudden demise of Mr. Lincoln by the bullet of an insensate fanatic, that peculiar institution of Europe, the school of the assassin, has transferred itself to the shores of America; and that country can no longer uphold her former boast that crime such as this had never been perpetrated...
