Excerpt: .of Sir Christopher Hatton, and Mary finally appeared, though under protest. After a scandalous farce of two days, October 14 and 15, where the principal evidence was the two letters above mentioned, the authenticity of which Mary strenuously denied, the court adjourned to London and accomplished its purpose in the Star Chamber, October 25. If the evidence given by Curie and Nau under compulsion was true, that the contents of the letters submitted were as they had really been written at Mary s dictation, then she was guilty of abetting Babington s plot against the life of Elizabeth. But when we consider the virulence of Lord Burleigh (Kobert Cecil), and Protestant feeling in general, we are compelled to give consideration to Mary s claim that the letters causing the conviction could have been interpolated or tampered with by agents of the government, especially when...
